THE ORGANIZATION

The pledge to build the Oakland Raiders into the finest organization in professional football today finds the Oakland franchise at the top of the pro sports world.

Much has been accomplished in the past 12 years, including an American Football League Championship in 1967 and Western Division titles in 1967, 1968, 1969, 1970, 1972, 1973 and 1974. The Raiders' record of 115-42-11 (.732) since 1963 is the best in pro football.

For the past eight years, the Raiders have maintained a dominance over pro football in terms of games won. In their last 112 games, the Raiders have won 84, tied 7, and lost 21. Oakland's consecutive seasons in 1967-68-69 are a landmark victory total (37-4-1) for a three-year period in pro football history. Unbeaten streaks of 14, 15, nine and nine games were also accomplished during the last six seasons. The 15-game string equalled the AFL record.

COACH OF THE YEAR

Another tribute to the organization is that in 12 years, three different coaches have been chosen "Coach of the Year."

Al Davis	1963
John Rauch	1967
John Madden	1969

This monumental rise came about by design, careful design. The past 15 years have been marked by long hours of dedication by all those who work for the Raider organization.

The fans are appreciative of the Raider's effort. Some 51,107 season tickets were sold in 1975, the maximum available to the public. The total home attendance in the Raiders' first season in 1960 was only 69,122, and some say that figure is generous.

The ultimate goal of the Raiders is a world championship, and the organization is working long hours to achieve that goal.

RAIDER OWNERS

AL DAVIS
Managing Partner

A strong dedication to excellence has marked the Oakland Raiders' rise during the last 12 years to the top of the pro sports world. The Oakland Raiders produced the best record in pro football during that period.

The Raiders have seven times been Western Division champions (1967-68-69-70-72-73-74) and won the AFL title in 1967. Their winning percentage during the 12 years is an excellent .732, based on a 115-42-11 record.

The man who guided the progress of the Raiders during these 12 years is the managing owner, Al Davis.

Davis' 15-year professional football story, from assistant coach of the San Diego Chargers, to head coach and general manager of the Raiders, to Commissioner of the AFL and finally to a principal owner in the Oakland franchise, is an amazing saga in pro sports.

In April, 1966, the then 36-year old Davis became Commissioner of the American Football League. It was a post he accepted with some reluctance, for first and foremost he was a football coach, and he knew that accepting the commissionership would in all probability mean an end to his coaching career. But the AFL, priming for an all-out battle with the rival National Football League, prevailed on Davis to accept the position. He was described by AFL president Ralph Wilson as "a coaching genius and astute administrator." AFL owners pointed to his brilliant coaching and administrative record and the high esteem in which he was held by players, the news media, and coaches across the country.

Eight weeks later, when pro football's two major leagues put an end to their six-year war, Davis was nationally acclaimed as the driving force who brought the leagues to the conference table. When the merger was completed, Davis resigned his AFL post of Commissioner.

He was once again a driving force in the May, 1969, realignment of the pro football. Three NFL teams, Cleveland, Baltimore and Pittsburgh, moved over to the AFL to form two 13-team conferences for 1970.

Now a member of the NFL Owners Executive Committee and the vital Competition Committee, Al Davis came to Oakland in January, 1963, dedicated to building the Raiders into pro sports' finest organization. Davis was the youngest (33) in pro football holding down the dual positions of head coach and general manager.

But Davis possessed 14 years' coaching experience and had been tabbed a "young coaching genius" by Sports illustrated and called "the most inventive mind in the country" by Scholastic Coach magazine. The Raiders, who had won just three games during 1961-62, were floundering on the field and in the front office.

But 1963 started one of the great rehabilitation jobs in the history of football. Introducing a meticulously designed offense and a new concept in defense, the "picked to finish last" Raiders zoomed to a 10-4 record and missed the Western Division crown by one game.

Davis was named Coach of the Year by the Associated Press, United Press International, Sports Illustrated, Sporting News and by his fellow coaches. He was named Oakland's Young Man of the Year, becoming the first in athletics to win the Chamber of Commerce award. Aside from his deep love of the Raiders and the community, he is vitally interested in the Bay Area baseball and basketball teams.

Davis was born July 4, 1929, in Brockton, Massachusetts, but was raised in Brooklyn. He attended Wittenberg College and Syracuse University, earning a degree in English. In college, he played football, basketball and baseball.

In 1950-51, he joined the staff at Adelphi College in New York as line coach, and his technical articles published in coaching magazines gained him considerable attention. He then went into the Army, being assigned as head football coach at Ft. Belvoir, Virginia. He molded a national power service club and capped one year by defeating national champion Maryland in a squad game.

Davis served on the staff of the Baltimore Colts in 1954 (age 24), devoting most of his time to personnel work. In 1955-56, he was line coach and chief recruiter at The Citadel. He spent the next three years at the University of Southern California, being the line coach for head coach Don Clark. In 1959, Davis was in charge of the entire defense.

In 1960, Sid Gillman hired Davis as offensive end coach of the Los Angeles Chargers. There Davis developed the finest passing attack in the league and kept the Chargers in the forefront among pro clubs in the fight for collegiate talent. From the Chargers, in San Diego in 1963, it was on to Oakland.

ED McGAH

WAYNE VALLEY

Two highly successful businessmen with a deep-seated interest in sports and their community are general partners of the Raiders, along with managing partner Al Davis. Edward McGah and Wayne Valley were among the Raiders' original group of nine owners when the Oakland franchise was awarded in 1960.

Since then, the ownership has evolved into a limited partnership, with Davis, McGah and Valley heading the group.

McGah is in the real estate and development business and has been active in sports many years. He still rates as one of the all-time best semi-pro ball players in the Oakland area, famed for his sandlot baseball. McGah's son, Ed, Jr., once belonged to the Boston Red Sox organization but left baseball to work with his father.

Valley's interest in football goes back to his high school days when he played at Oakland's Castlemont High. He played college football at Oregon State, the fullback of the Beavers' famed "Iron Men" clubs of the mid-30s. Valley's business interests are in the construction and development field.

HEAD COACH JOHN MADDEN

One of the outstanding coaches in the National Football League is the Raiders' John Madden.

Now in his seventh season as a head coach, the 39-year-old Madden has produced six straight superior teams. He has won five AFC Western Division championships, including the last three in a row, and was named Coach of the Year in 1969 after his first Oakland team finished 12-1-1. Last year, the Madden-coached Raiders rolled to a 12-2 season, the best mark in the NFL. Overall, Coach Madden's Raider teams have won 59 games, lost 18 and tied seven.

One of the trademarks of Madden's Raider teams has been their ability to put together unbeaten streaks. In 1974, the streak reached nine games, longest in the league. Previous seasons have seen streaks of seven, six, seven, nine and six unbeaten games. The Raiders defeated the defending World Champion Miami Dolphins 28-26 in 1974 AFC Playoffs before bowing to the new World Champion Pittsburgh Steelers 24-13 in the AFC Championship.

The Raiders, under Madden's guidance, have produced seasons of 12-1-1, 8-4-2, 8-4-2, 10-3-1, 9-4-1 and 12-2. The 1974 team erased an opening game loss with its nine straight victories; the 1973 team won four pressure games to close out the year as champions; the 1972 champions won their last six in a row; the 1971 record was better than two teams which reached the playoffs; the 1970 Raiders rallied from an 0-2-1 start with a mid-season, seven-game unbeaten string to win the title; and in 1969, Oakland recorded the second best mark ever in the AFL.

Madden is also one of the youngest coaches ever to be in charge of an NFL Pro Bowl team. Madden was head coach for the AFC All-Stars in 1971, 1973 and 1974.

Madden began his pro coaching career with the Raiders in 1967, serving as linebacker mentor for two years. He came to the Raiders from San Diego State, where as defensive coordinator he helped produce fine teams in 1964-66. The Aztecs were ranked No. 1 among small colleges in 1964.

The 6-foot-4, 260-pound redhead started his coaching career at Hancock Junior College in Santa Maria, California in 1960. He was 23. After two years as an assistant, he became head coach and compiled a 13-5 mark for two seasons. In 1963, his Hancock team won the league championship and was ranked 9th in the country with an 8-1 record.

Madden spent one year (1959) with the Philadelphia Eagles, but a knee injury cut short his pro career. He graduated from California Polytechnic College, where he was an all-conference tackle and a catcher on the baseball team. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in 1959 and a Master of Arts degree in 1961, both from Cal Poly.

Born in Austin, Minnesota, but raised in Daly City, near San Francisco, Madden was always active in sports as a youth and played football and baseball at Jefferson High.

The coach lives in Pleasanton with his wife, Virginia, and their sons, Mike, 11, and Joe, 9.

One of Kansas' all-time great linemen, Spencer was an NEA All-America and all Big Eight in 1952. He played in the East-West and Senior Bowl games. Spencer, 44, is a native of Hopewell, Kansas. He was a member of the Rams' 1951 championship team. A native of San Diego, Dahms was a Little All-America tackle at San Diego State and was signed by the Rams as a free agent. Tom and his wife Diane and their three sons and daughter live in Castro Valley.

1975 OUTLOOK

During the past 12 years, the Oakland Raiders record of 115 victories against only 42 losses stands alone in professional football.

The Raiders produced pro football's best record (12-2) in 1974 and widened the gap between the Raiders and the runnerup team for the dozen years, 1963-1974. No other team even approaches Oakland's 115-42-11 record since 1963.

The last eight years have been even more spectacular for the Silver and Black, with seven divisional titles and a record of 84-21-7 (.800), unchallenged in the National Football League.

Another standout achievement has been Oakland's 10 straight winning seasons, again the best record in the NFL.

Coach John Madden, in taking his fifth divisional championship in six years as Raiders' head coach, guided his team to nine straight victories. It was the longest winning streak of 1974. The Raiders finished with three straight triumphs, then defeated the defending World Champion Miami Dolphins 28-26 in a superb effort. The season ended with a 24-13 loss to the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers in the AFC title game.

The Raiders' offense, sparked by NFL Player of the Year Ken Stabler, ranked No. 1 in the American Football Conference and second in the league. The defense, using Coach Madden's Situation Substitution to advantage, limited six opponents to one touchdown or less and held both Pittsburgh (17-0) and the Kansas City Chiefs (7-6) without a touchdown. Opponents were allowed just 12 touchdown passes, equalling the record set in 1973.

Oakland set a team record with 562 rushing plays, averaging 4.2 yards per rush. The 2,334 yards rushing was the third best in Raiders' history.

Other high team figures for '74 were for passing percentage (55.5), punting average (42.2, best in NFL), interceptions (27, second in AFC), punt returns (11.5, fifth in AFC), average yards per pass play (6.64, best in NFL), percentage of touchdown passes (8.4, best in NFL), kickoff returns (22.8 average, fourth in AFC) and scoring (355 points, best in NFL).

The 1975 schedule will be another struggle, and includes two teams which made the NFL playoffs—the Miami Dolphins and the Washington Redskins. Other opponents will be the Atlanta Falcons, New Orleans Saints, Baltimore Colts, Cincinnati Bengals, Cleveland Browns, Houston Oilers and the ever-tough Western Division trio of the Denver Broncos, Kansas City Chiefs and San Diego Chargers.

The '75 Raiders:

QUARTERBACK

Ken Stabler not only quarterbacked the Raiders to the best record in the NFL and into the AFC Championship, but reaped nearly every honor possible in the '74 season. He was the NFL Player of the Year, the starting quarterback in the Pro Bowl for the second straight year and won the Gorman Award (voted by his teammates) as the Raiders most inspirational player for the second consecutive year. The 29-year-old ex-Alabama star passed for 26 touchdowns, most by any NFL quarterback in six years. As the second-ranked passer in the NFL, Stabler passed for touchdowns in 11 of 13 games and had four completions of 60 yards or more, all for touchdowns. He completed 11 straight passes against Detroit, finished the year with a 57.4 completion percentage and went nearly six full games (143 passes) without an interception in mid-season.

Daryle Lamonica and Larry Lawrence, second-year NFL pro with two years experience in Canada, were the reserve quarterbacks in 1974. Lawrence started a late-season game at Kansas City.

Also available is George Blanda, returning for his 26th year of professional football. The oldest man to ever play the game, Blanda will be 48 on September 17. He played in one game at quarterback and passed for a touchdown. Blanda scored 77 points kicking to run his all-time pro record to 1,919 points. He has also played in a record 326 NFL games, the last 210 consecutively, another record.

Drafted quarterbacks are lefthander David Humm of Nebraska, taken in the fifth round, and Harry Knight of Richmond, a ninth round selection.

RUNNING BACKS

Marv Hubbard and Clarence Davis, along with four other talented runners, helped push the Raiders to their third best rushing total of all-time, 2,344 yards in 1974.

Hubbard, with the NFL's best active rushing average (4.8), gained 865 yards and scored four touchdowns to rank fifth in the AFC and seventh in the NFL. He set a team record with consecutive games of 117, 107 and 111 yards in mid-season. Hubbard needs just 998 yards to become Oakland's all-time leading ball-carrier. Davis, with 554 yards, was the 12th leading rusher in the AFC. His 41-yard burst at Cleveland capped a 116-yard rushing effort, best in his career.

Dependable veterans Pete Banaszak and Charlie Smith and newcomers Harold Hart and Mark van Eeghen added punch to the Raider attack, with Hart and van Eeghen carrying 5.3 and 5.0 averages, respectively, in their first seasons. Banaszak, the third-leading rusher with 272 yards, scored five touchdowns rushing.

Also available were vets Bob Hudson and Warren Bankston, both outstanding special teams performers. Bankston is also capable of playing tight end.

Drafted running backs are 3rd round pick Louis Carter of Maryland, 15th round selection Paul Careathers of Tennessee and 1974 choice (14th) Don Willingham of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, who played in Canada. Another key newcomer is James McAlister, drafted 6th in 1974 after signing with the Southern California Sun of the WFL. There he was the league's third-ranked receiver with 65 receptions for 772 yards and four touchdowns. He also rushed for 511 yards.

WIDE RECEIVERS

Fred Biletnikoff and Cliff Branch formed pro football's most effective pair of wide receivers in 1974, combining for 102 receptions, 1,685 yards and 20 touchdowns. The touchdown figure is nearly double any other pair of receivers in the NFL. Branch was the AFC's second-leading receiver, Biletnikoff ranked No. 5.

Biletnikoff continued his climb as one of the all-time great receivers. His 42 catches for 593 yards and seven touchdowns pushed his 10-year total to 450 receptions for 7,105 yards and 60 touchdowns. He ranks 14th on the all-time list for catches, 19th in yards gained and is one of only 18 players in history with 60 or more touchdown catches. Biletnikoff has caught 40 or more passes for eight straight years and played in 112 consecutive games.

Branch became an all-pro in his third season, leading the league in touchdown catches (13) and pass receiving yardage (1,092). The fleet, ex-Colorado star caught nine passes for 186 yards against Pittsburgh in the AFC Championship, and five times during the regular season went over 100 yards receiving. He is the first non-kicker to lead the Raiders in scoring (78 points) in 10 years. Branch and quarterback Ken Stabler teamed on touchdown passes of 60, 61, 64 and 67 yards. Both Branch and Biletnikoff were Pro Bowl selections.

Young veteran Mike Siani, who caught 45 passes in 1973, and Frank Pitts and newcomer Morris Bradshaw were the other receivers. Pitts will be playing his 11th NFL season at age 31 while Bradshaw showed promise as a rookie in '74.

TIGHT ENDS

Veteran Bob Moore and 240-pound draft pick Dave Casper shared time at tight end in 1974 and form a strong combination this season. Moore has been the starter for two years and has played in 56 straight games. He was the team's third-leading receiver with 30 catches for 356 yards and two touchdowns. Moore's top effort of the season, and of his career, was seven receptions for 98 yards in a key victory over Cincinnati. He also had a five-catch performance against San Diego.

Casper made his four pass receptions count for three touchdowns, two against Kansas City and one at San Francisco. Third-year pro Jim Thaxton (6-2, 240) was obtained in a trade with Cleveland.

Warren Bankston is also available at tight end and 6-foot-6 Kent Gaydos returns after being on injured reserve last season.

OFFENSIVE LINE

The Raiders ranked No. 1 in total offense in the American Football Conference in 1974, ranking No. 2 in passing and No. 3 in rushing. The outstanding play of the Raiders' offensive line was instrumental in this balanced, high-powered attack.

The five regulars—center Jim Otto, guards Gene Upshaw and George Buehler and tackles Art Shell and John Vella—missed only one game between them. A minor injury kept Vella on the sidelines for the final regular season contest, his first missed game in three years. All of the others have consecutive games streaks going: Otto, a record 210 games started; Upshaw, 112 in a row over his eight-year career; Shell, 98 games, or seven years; and Buehler, 70 games, five years.

Shell and Upshaw were starters in the Pro Bowl for the third straight year.

Otto has not missed a Raider game in 15 years, and the 37-year-old shares the NFL consecutive games record with teammate George Blanda.

The Raiders' No. 1 pick of 1974, tackle Henry Lawrence, started one game and played in every contest. Center-guard Dave Dalby also played in 14 games, seeing considerable action at center. Guard Dan Medlin was also available.

Guard Steve Sylvester of Notre Dame (6-3, 256) was the Raiders' 10th round draft pick and center Jack Magee of Boston College (6-4, 255) was a 12th round choice. Returning to the Raiders after a brief stay with the San Diego Chargers is tackle Harold Paul (6-5, 255), who played at Oklahoma.

DEFENSIVE LINE

This veteran quartet continued to improve, playing effectively all season. End Horace Jones and tackles Art Thoms and Otis Sistrunk started every game, while end Bubba Smith missed only one start. This group provided steady top-flight defensive play all season despite being bothered by injuries.

Thoms (6-5, 260) and Sistrunk (6-4, 255), along with Jones (6-3, 255), Smith (6-7, 265) and Tony Cline (6-3, 244) had a number of blocked passes and spilled opposing quarterbacks 36 times for 314 yards in losses. Sistrunk intercepted a pass and recovered three fumbles, Jones recovered three fumbles and ran them back 45 yards and Thoms scored an opening game touchdown on a 29-yard fumble recovery return. Sistrunk was honored by being named to the Pro Bowl squad.

Rounding out the group was defensive tackle Kelvin Korver (6-6, 270), who saw action in nine games.

Newcomers for this season are end Blenda Gay (6-5, 255), a Raider draft pick two years ago and tackle Ray Carr (6-5, 248), a veteran of minor league football who was with the Raiders in the pre-season last year.

LINEBACKERS

Working well with the front four were outside linebackers Phil Villapiano (6-2, 222) and Gerald Irons (6-2, 230) and middle linebacker Dan Conners (6-1, 230). Second-year pro Monte Johnson (6-4, 235) was also active every game.

Villapiano was named to the Pro Bowl team for the second straight year. Conners starts his 12th year with the Raiders and Irons continues to gain recognition entering his sixth Raider campaign. Johnson
